Heather Dubrow may scoff at her husband's sense of humor, but we're fans of Terry Dubrow and his attempts at bringing some levity to The Real Housewives of Orange County. After all, we do love a good onion ring now and then.

But just who is Terry Dubrow?

A popular Orange County-based plastic surgeon, Terry studied medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles. During his stint at UCLA, he became the chief resident of both general and plastic surgery.

Post-medical school, Terry founded his own practice in Newport Beach, specializing in cosmetic and reconstructive plastic surgery. He's also a published author with over 30 papers in peer-reviewed surgical journals like The American Journal of Surgery and Journal of Surgical Research. Terry also co-authored the book The Acne Cure, which details cutting-edge treatments used on a number of celebs to achieve clearer complexions.

Before appearing on Real Housewives of Orange County, the good doctor made a name for himself as the featured plastic surgeon on FOX's 2004 reality hit The Swan. He's also been brought on as a plastic surgery expert on shows like Good Day LA, The View, Bridalplasty, and Larry King Live. But RHOC fans know him best as Heather's husband, of course. The two met on a blind date in 1999, and the rest is history. The couple now has four children together: 9-year-old twins Nicholas and Maximillia, 6-year-old Katarina, and 2-year-old Collette.

With a family, a reality show, and a thriving practice on his plate, we won't begrudge Terry Dubrow a few wisecracks now and then! Let's just hope his mouth doesn't get him in too much more trouble with his wife!
